BRIEFLY ●

Romania is a vibrant tapestry of old-world charm and modern filmmaking potential, offering a compelling blend of distinct visual backdrops, resource-rich infrastructure, and cost-effective incentives.

Situated at the crossroads of Central and Eastern Europe, it boasts breathtaking natural scenery—from the mysterious Carpathian Mountains to serene Danube Delta marshlands—and historic urban architecture, highlighted by medieval towns and grandiose Neo-Renaissance estates.

At the same time, Romania supports filmmakers with an expanding local film industry that has cultivated seasoned crews and excellent technical resources. Soundstages equipped with modern technology, combined with the country's state-of-the-art post-production facilities, ensure an efficient workflow from pre-production to final cut.

Romanian Athenaeum | Bucharest

BUCHAREST - LANDMARKS ●

Bucharest boasts a rich tapestry of historical and cultural landmarks that reflect its diverse heritage.

- Palace of the Parliament: Dominating the city's skyline, the Palace of the Parliament is the world's heaviest and third-largest administrative building. Constructed during the 1980s under Nicolae Ceaușescu's regime, this colossal structure exemplifies socialist realist architecture and houses the Romanian Parliament, as well as several museums.
- Romanian Athenaeum: An architectural gem, the Romanian Athenaeum is a concert hall renowned for its exquisite neoclassical design and exceptional acoustics. Since its completion in 1888, it has been a symbol of Romanian culture, hosting numerous classical music performances and serving as the home of the George Enescu Philharmonic Orchestra.
- Old Town (Lipscani District): The historic heart of Bucharest, the Lipscani District, showcases a blend of medieval, neoclassical, and Art Nouveau architecture. Once a major commercial hub, today its narrow cobblestone streets are lined with vibrant cafés, restaurants, shops, and historic landmarks, reflecting the city's rich past.
- Dimitrie Gusti National Village Museum: Situated within Herăstrău Park, this open-air museum offers an immersive journey into Romania's rural heritage. Established in 1936, it features traditional houses, churches, and farmsteads relocated from various regions, providing insight into the country's diverse architectural styles and folk traditions.
- Stavropoleos Monastery: Nestled in the Old Town, Stavropoleos Monastery is a serene oasis renowned for its stunning Brâncovenesc architecture. Established in 1724, the monastery features intricate stone and wood carvings, a beautiful courtyard, and houses a valuable collection of religious artifacts and books.
- Arcul de Triumf: Inspired by Paris's Arc de Triomphe, Bucharest's Arcul de Triumf commemorates Romania's military victories and the Great Union of 1918. Erected in its current form in 1936, the 27-meter-high monument is adorned with sculptures by prominent Romanian artists and stands as a symbol of national pride.
- Cotroceni Palace: Serving as the official residence of the Romanian President, Cotroceni Palace is a splendid example of neo-Romanian architecture. The palace complex also houses the National Cotroceni Museum, which showcases Romanian art, history, and culture within its opulent interiors.

SHOT IN ROMANIA ●

Django (2023) series

Set in the Old West of the 1860s–1870s, it follows Django as he searches for his daughter in a town called New Babylon. Filmed extensively in Romania, including locations such as Bucharest and the Danube area, the series showcases the country's versatile landscapes and historical settings.

We Were The Lucky Ones (2023) series

A 2024 limited series that chronicles the harrowing journey of the Polish-Jewish Kurc family during World War II, as they strive to survive and reunite amidst the Holocaust. Bucharest served as a primary filming location, standing in for several Polish cities, including Radom and Lvov (now Lviv, Ukraine). The city's early 20th-century architecture provided an authentic backdrop for the series' historical setting.

Wednesday (2022) series

Directed by Tim Burton, this Netflix series featuring Wednesday Addams was shot extensively at Cantacuzino Castle in Bușteni and other Romanian sites. Romania's gothic-style architecture contributed significantly to the series' darkly whimsical aesthetic.

Flowers in the Attic (2022) series

This Lifetime prequel series to the iconic "Flowers in the Attic" saga was filmed extensively in Romania, leveraging historic mansions and period architecture to recreate the opulent yet haunting atmosphere central to the story's dramatic narrative.

Voyagers (2021) feature film

Directed by Neil Burger, this sci-fi thriller starring Colin Farrell and Tye Sheridan used Romanian studio facilities and locations to craft its futuristic spaceship interiors and environments, highlighting the country's advanced production capabilities.

Borat Subsequent Moviefilm (2020) feature film

Sacha Baron Cohen's mockumentary comedy partially utilized rural Romanian settings to represent Kazakhstan, effectively capturing the comedic contrasts needed for Borat's humorous exploration of cultural misperceptions.

SHOT IN ROMANIA (CONT'D) ●

The Nun (2018) feature film

A chilling installment of “The Conjuring” franchise, “The Nun” utilized Romania’s historical Corvin Castle and the atmospheric medieval town of Sighișoara, lending authenticity and eerie visual depth to the horror narrative.

War Dogs (2016) feature film

Directed by Todd Phillips and starring Jonah Hill and Miles Teller, parts of this dark comedy-drama were filmed in Bucharest and other Romanian locales, effectively doubling for Albania and other international settings to realistically depict its global arms-dealing story.

Sons of Liberty (2015) series

This historical miniseries set during the American Revolution, featuring actors like Ben Barnes, utilized Romanian locations and sets to convincingly portray 18th-century colonial America.

The Zero Theorem (2013) feature film

Directed by Terry Gilliam and starring Christoph Waltz, this futuristic sci-fi drama filmed in Bucharest, leveraging the city’s eclectic architecture and gritty urban landscapes to visualize Gilliam’s surreal, dystopian vision.

Hatfields & McCoys (2012) series

This Emmy-winning historical miniseries starring Kevin Costner and Bill Paxton depicted the infamous American family feud using Romanian locations to authentically represent late-1800s Kentucky and West Virginia, highlighting Romania’s versatility as a filming location.

The Brothers Bloom (2008) feature film

Directed by Rian Johnson, this clever comedy-drama featuring Adrien Brody, Mark Ruffalo, and Rachel Weisz was partly shot at the stunning Peleş Castle in Sinaia which perfectly captured the film’s whimsical European elegance.

Cold Mountain (2003) feature film

Directed by Anthony Minghella, this Civil War epic starring Nicole Kidman and Jude Law used Romania’s lush landscapes and authentic villages as a convincing American frontier backdrop.
